Thank you for making 2019 yet another remarkable year for Queens Community House! Our dedicated staff has done an incredible job at expanding our outreach while strengthening our programs and services.

Our ongoing goal is to keep our overhead low while increasing our service in the field, and you truly make this possible. As you will see in this report, we are stronger than ever due to our continually expanding community who comes together to donate time, resources, and talent in support of our important mission.

Thank you for wholeheartedly being a part of the Queens Community House movement.

WHO WE SERVE

Queens Community House impacts the lives of thousands of Queens residents daily through a broad network of programs and services.

Our programs are organized into four departments, based on the populations served: Children and Youth, Young Adults, Adults and Families, and Older Adults.
OUR PROGRAMS

Queens Community House provides comprehensive youth development programming.

Our youth participants can explore interests and passions, develop positive social connections, contribute to their community, become life-long learners, gain meaningful experiences, and achieve formal credentials. We offer center-based and school-based programming.

OUR PROGRAMS

Queens Community House offers a broad range of family and community services reflective of our ongoing commitment to fostering strong, stable, and self-sufficient families and communities throughout Queens.

Overall, these programs link neighbor to neighbor, offer opportunities for continued learning and skills development, enhance family supports, provide services for new immigrants, improve housing conditions and prevent evictions, and assist in community building and development.
OUR PROGRAMS

Queens has the largest, fastest-growing, and most culturally and ethnically diverse older adult population in New York City.

If you are age 60 or over and live in Queens, or are a caregiver for a senior living in Queens, QCH likely has something of interest to you.

Our comprehensive, multi-faceted older adult programs and services are designed to encourage senior independence and continued engagement.

On January 30, the U.S. Department of Labor awarded Queens Community House a $1.1M YouthBuild grant. YouthBuild is a national program helping at-risk youth obtain their high school equivalency, earn recognized credentials for in-demand occupations in the construction industry, and help to build or renovate housing for low-income or homeless individuals and families in their communities.

Occupational skills training, education, and supportive services are located at Pomonok Community Center, one of our multi-service community hubs, located within a NYC Housing Authority public housing development in southwest Flushing. We partner with the NYC Department of Education, which provides a full-time Teacher and Teacher’s Aide to instruct students and help them obtain their high school equivalency diploma.

“YouthBuild provides our youth participants with an opportunity to gain the knowledge and skills they need for good-paying jobs in Queens while also becoming more engaged members of their communities. That can be life-changing for a young person,” said our Executive Director, Ben Thomases.
In 2019, thanks to generous support from former U.S. Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew and his current employer, the private equity firm Lindsay Goldberg, we were able to advance our work with family literacy through the launching of the Rebecca Lew Family Literacy Initiative.

Early literacy development is a strong predictor of a child’s future academic success, and conversely, those who begin their early school experience without strong reading skills are more likely to struggle and drop out of school later on. That is why educators have stressed the importance of family literacy: creating a home environment that encourages literacy, connects reading and writing to a child’s interests, and makes learning fun. We knew that we would have a deeper impact on our children’s success if we could give family members the tools they needed to engage in and support their children’s literacy development.

Under this initiative, we have created a Family Literacy Coordinator position to oversee an ambitious two-year project to develop curricula, train staff in literacy tools, and embed the family literacy model within each of our 15 afterschool programs.
Last year, to ensure broader impact and promote transformative change in our communities, Queens Community House joined Metro IAF and over 40 Queens-based institutions, non-profits, and congregations in founding Queens Power, a coalition of concerned borough residents committed to building a better Queens.

Queens Power has energized our advocacy and community organizing work through deeper and more intentional participant engagement. Our work has been focused on QCH’s "hub" sites and began with the creation of an "Action Group" at our Forest Hills Community Center, bringing participants together from a diverse range of QCH programs to discuss, strategize, and take action on issues of importance to them and their neighbors.

Participants interested in advocacy and community organizing have also been able to plug into leadership trainings organized by Queens Power. In February, three of our staff facilitated a training on community organizing and the importance of building power; about 250 members of the Queens Power coalition attended, and 15 QCH participant leaders were trained.
Queens Community House developed a partnership with Madison House presents, the company that operates the Forest Hills Stadium, and transportation network Lyft, to help local seniors meet their important transportation needs.

Through this partnership, our Senior Medical Transportation Service was able to provide those in need with free transportation to and from medical appointments and other important health monitoring events through Lyft’s easy-to-use ride scheduling service, Lyft Concierge.

This service makes it easy to schedule transportation, allowing our orders adults to stay engaged in their community and continue to live vibrant, active lives.
When I transferred to Voyages South High School, it wasn’t all cupcakes and rainbows. There were times when I would wake up and think to myself, ‘Do I really need school?’

My environment was completely unstable. However, through my experiences here, I have learned adversity is the training ground that helps our inner light to emerge. If I allowed myself to become a product of my environment, I would not be standing here as Valedictorian today. I had to realize the only way out was to get an education. I thought about my mother and the many sacrifices she has made for me, and I decided to be better not only for myself, but also for her.

Over the past year, Voyages South became my safe zone. Everyone is always so encouraging; especially my guidance counselor, Angela. Through good and bad, she was my rock. If high school has taught me anything, it’s that bridges burn, tables turn, and you live and learn.

My name is Marla. I am from Caracas, Venezuela, an amazing country in a terrible situation. When I saw children going hungry, I protested and tried to help by delivering food. I was arrested and thrown in jail. I was terrified. I put my whole life in two suitcases and fled my country. I didn’t have healthcare, I didn’t know anything. I didn’t know English.

When I arrived to Queens, I looked up English classes online and found Queens Community House. I started attending the classes. QCH has been a guide for me. I’m not just learning English, I’m learning about other cultures, immigration laws, and about my rights as an immigrant.

Now that I have graduated from my classes, my next goal is to improve Queens. I have joined the Action Group, and we have already organized two meetings, and we are just getting started. All of us, including immigrants can build the power we need to change Queens.

I’m 85 years old and I live in Forest Hills, Queens. After my wife passed away in 2006, I was in a single, fixed income situation. I had no friends or family around, and I was only eating one to two meals a day. When I went to bed at night, I could hear my stomach grumbling. I lost a lot of sleep some nights because I simply didn’t eat enough.

Finally in 2013, I called my local State Assemblyman, and he referred me to Queens Community House. When I called QCH, I spoke with Toolarie, the Director of the Forest Hills Senior Center. As soon as I did, I knew I’d made the right move. Toolarie had total compassion and made me feel like I had found a family. She took the time to learn about my situation and invited me to join the center. After that, I started attending regularly. Every day I would exercise and have a hot lunch. Just talking to people made me feel like a human being again.

There’s no question at all in my mind. Queens Community House staff saved my life.
